LOIRE VALLEY 2017

Self guided Tour
315 km | 7 nights / 8 days

Known as the Valley of the Kings and the Garden of France, the Loire Valley is a lush region steeped in History. The French Royal Court moved there in the 14th Century, sparking a riot of Renaissance architecture including the magnificent chateaux of Chambord with its 365 chimneys, Chenonceau with its spectacular ballroom, and dozens more. The Loire Valley also boasts fields and fields of sunflowers and a surprising variety of wines as well as distinctive and delicious cuisine.

TOUR ITINERARY

DAY 1 Arrive

Transfers will be arranged from Saumur train station. You start from Montreuil Bellay, a delightful walled village with striking chateau overlooking the river Thouet. A chance to lounge by the pool and enjoy a cold pastis.

DAY 2 Montreuil Bellay to Chinon 26 miles / 42 km

An easy ride to one of the highlights of the week, Château Brézé, a wine-making estate famous for its amazing underground chateau. Leaving Brézé we make our way to the Royal Abbey at Fontevraud once home to many French queens. After lunch you descend to the river Vienne and cycle along a riverside path to Chinon where you stay at the Hotel France in the heart of medieval Chinon.

DAY 3 Chinon to Azay-le-Rideau 34 miles / 55 km

You leave Vienne and cycle towards the river Indre where you find Château Ussé. Next stop is Villandry and its Michelin 3rated gardens., then cycle through delightful riding country to Azay-le-Rideau, another top-rated chateau. Tonight you will stay at the Hotel Château with the chance to visit the spectacular son et lumière, and the spectacle at Azay-le-Rideau is worth the stroll.

DAY 4 Azay-le-Rideau to Loches 37 miles / 59 km

Today is a long cycle, 37 miles plus, but much of it follows the delightful Indre valley, and the flat rolling countryside that divides the Indre and the River Cher. The Indre valley is widely regarded as the prettiest of all the many river valleys in the region, and Loches is an unsung delight with a lovely château and a charming town centre. Tonight you are at the Hotel George Sands.

DAY 5 Loches to Montrichard 26 miles / 42 km

A long memorable day, with some glorious cycling that takes you off the tourist route, and north to the Cher Valley and to the most famous of all the Loire Châteaux, Chenonceau. The Ballroom, built by Catherine de Medici, spans the Cher in spectacular fashion. You can cycle to the Caves du Monmousseau for a tour of their wine cave and a tasting of their sparkling wines, but please check times. Tonight you are beside the banks of the River Cher at the Hotel Bellevue.

DAY 6 Montrichard to Chambord 31 miles / 50 km

Follow the Cher valley, visiting fascinating mushroom caves at Bourré where they grow Blue Foot, Shitake, Oyster and Paris mushrooms – it's a great visit, but please check times. After lunch, the route follows quiet backroads across deserted countryside to château Cheverny which lies in the Cour-Cheverny appellation with wine made from the local Romanian grape. The Château Chambord is by far the largest of all the Loire châteaux (and the best!). The hotel, the Grand St. Michel, faces this beautiful château in the middle of a vast hunting park.

DAY 7 Chambord to Amboise 39 miles / 63 km

Much of today is spent beside the Loire downstream, passing through Chaumont. Your final destination is Amboise. With its beautiful white château overlooking the Loire and the bustling medieval centre, Amboise was also the last home of Leonardo da Vinci at the Clos-Luce, which is well worth a visit, and your last night is at the Hotel le Vinci.

DAY 8 Homeward bound

We will arrange transport to Amboise train station with an 11-minute journey to the TGV station at St Pierre des Corps. A gentle departure time from St Pierre of 10.30 arrives in Paris before midday, and London by mid-afternoon.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The Wines of the Loire Valley

The Loire valley is a long way north for a wine region, but for centuries ‘the Garden of France’ has produced vast quantities of wine. The only world class wines from the Loire are the imperishable vins liquoreux found among the Coteaux du Layon in appellations such as Bonnezeaux and Chaume, but there are wines of real interest and quality to be found by those willing to look.

The first vineyards on its descent from the Massif Central are found in Pouilly Fumé and Sancerre, renowned for their flinty dry sauvignon blancs. Further downstream there are red wine appellations such as Chinon, St Nicholas de Borgeuil and the more prestigious Saumur-Champigny, all made primarily from the Cabernet France grape.

Saumur-Champigny is restricted to just 9 municipalities, but the wider appellation of Saumur is the largest producer of sparkling wines in the world outside Champagne. The history of sparkling wine here is a result of too many unreliable harvests producing thin, acidic wine. Locals developed the method of adding sugar to encourage a secondary fermentation that produces a more reliable product, and the famous fizz. This isn’t cheap Champagne – some argue that this is where the ‘traditional method’ was first discovered, and there are some wines of real quality produced under the appellation of Saumur Brut.

Another appellation of note is Vouvray, once one of the most renowned appellations in France, and now rebuilding that reputation. Vignerons in Vouvray can only produce white wine, and can only use the Chenin Blanc grape, but the variety of wines is surprising. There are bone-dry Vouvray Sec wines, and they range from off-dry to moelleux (not quite as sweet as a vin liquoreux). There are also sparkling wines and most unusually of all, Vouvray Pétillant – very slightly sparkling wine. This method requires a better quality wine to start with, and so a good Pétillant can be a delight on a hot summer day.
